Celebrating the stories, culture and communities of the East End's greatest pubs – before they vanish.

Take a tour through the past and present of the East End's greatest pubs, exploring their forgotten histories, rich architecture and local communities as well as the landladies and lords fighting to keep this vital part of London's cultural history alive. The East End has seen some of the highest rates of pub closures in Britain. It's time to halt the tide and celebrate these fantastic pubs so we don't lose them forever.

From wet led backstreet boozers to historic riverside inns, this sumptuous book is full of beautiful photography and engaging writing that uncovers an often overlooked world of snug bars, welcoming Guv'nors, loyal punters and inventive landladies.

Alistair Von Lion is passionate about the social history and culture of London's pubs. As the London Pub Explorer (@londonpubexplorer) he has over 32k followers.

Tim George is a photographer documenting London's ever-changing built environment. He works independently on photography and graphic design.

Hoxton Mini Press is a small indie publisher based in East London. They are dedicated to making books that are accessible, affordable and beautiful.
